

ikon

From: Tiraschi, Scott [Scott.Tiraschi@kla-tencor.com]
Sent: Monday, May 03, 2004 3:23 PM
To: Director - FASB
Cc: Laboy, Tracy
Subject: Expensing Stock Options; File Reference No. 1102-100

Letter of Comment No: 2/67
File Reference: 1102-100

To: director@fasb.org

Subject: File Reference No. 1102-100

The idea that an accounting rule could curtail my ability to participate in the success of my company is disheartening to say the least. Our employee stock purchase plan, (ESPP) and employee stock option plan give me a stake in the success of the company, and they motivate me to work harder. I believe that if companies are forced to expense these plans, my company will be forced to limit the use of the plans. This would negatively impact morale, productivity and innovation.

I believe that mandatory expensing of our ESPP and stock options is bad accounting. The potential dilution of each investor's share of company ownership is the real cost of employee stock options. That cost is already reflected in our company financial statements through "diluted earnings per share". I also do not see that the current proposal clarifies the issues of transparency or accuracy. In fact, I would think given the array of variables and latitude in the assumptions proposed, the valuation methodology would cloud the financial statements more than ever.

Broad-based stock option programs are good for shareholders because employees are rewarded only if our company's stock value increases. In the past, my stock options have enabled me to improve my quality of life in meaningful ways. I have in the past twenty three years, been able to pay for my sons high school and college education, purchased cars as well as been able to assist in the purchase of my home.

I have personally seen the benefits of stock options to companies, employees and families. Broad-based plans should be encouraged, not eliminated and certainly not eliminated by a set of standards that does nothing to add to transparency or accuracy which are the hallmarks of accounting.

Respectfully submitted,
Scott Tiraschi
KLA-Tencor Corporation
One Technology Drive, MS 3234
Milpitas, CA 95035