

ikon

Letter of Comment No: 1107
File Reference: 1102-100

From: Randy Robertson [rarobert@cisco.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 21, 2004 10:35 AM
To: Director - FASB
Subject: [I]File Reference NO. 1102-100 - Stock Option Expensing

Dear Chairman Robert H. Herz,

I am writing you in regards to the File Reference NO. 1102-100 pertaining to treating stock options as an expense. Not only would this be an issue from an accounting standpoint it would also hurt U.S. companies ability to remain competitive in a global market at a time when we need to support U.S. business not hinder them. I have outlined a few key points below.

Accounting Issues:

The artificially high valuation for a stock option required by FASB will eliminate stock options as a tool which has driven innovation and productivity.
Stock options do not meet the definition of an expense because they do not use company assets.
The true cost of a stock option is dilution of earnings per share (EPS) and is already accounted for when options are exercised.

Competition:

U.S. companies need stock options to compete with other countries on a global basis. (Example: Chinese companies use stock options and they do not treat them as an expense.)
Expensing stock options could have a dramatic impact on American high tech leadership, innovation and job creation. In today's economic environment, the number one rule should be first, do no harm .

Having spent my last 8 working years a with public company that has a stock option plan I have seen first hand the importance of stock options. From a personal standpoint they are a huge part of how I support and plan to support my family in the future. From a corporate standpoint they provide a great means to motivate employees to work harder for both the companies and the shareholders common goals. From a government perspective if the stock option value is realize, the taxes are paid, up front. I work for what I believe is one of the most successful companies, and I can assure you a large part of the companies success is due to these type incentives for the long, hard effort put forth. I urge you to NOT expense stock options.

Sincerely,

Raymond Robertson
429 S. Oak Street
Palatine, IL. 60067

Randy Robertson - Business Development & Engineering Manager
Mobility Partners Group

Cisco Systems Inc.
8735 W. Higgins Road
Chicago, IL. 60631
Office: 773 695-8091
rarobert@cisco.com

4/21/2004