This ruling has caused most of the problem with the current credit crisis. The idea was good but the effects were horrible as we can see now. Example if I own a CD at 3% for 5 years and if as a financial institution I had to mark to market, I would continually have a capital change (problem) if the value dropped even though I would get all my money back at maturity. Modify the rule. John Donaldson